Y wins national championship

BYU coach LaVell Edwards and the Cougars celebrate their 24-17 win over Michigan in Holiday Bowl '7. The win closed out a 13-0 season, and following the New Year's Day bowl BYU won national championship.

By SCOTT D. PIERCE Editor

The votes are in. The brackets have been posted and the winner is — the BYU football team, 1984's consensus national champion.

"We're the national champs, and we deserve it," said BYU punter-kicker Lee Johnson. "How many other college teams are there?"

The Cougars finished the season as the only undefeated team in major college football. The 13-0 record marked only the second time in 86 years a team has won 13 games in a season.

BYU also owns a 34 game winning streak — the longest in the nation.

"It's the greatest thing that's ever happened to us," said Cougar center Trevor Matlack. "We beat everybody we played. What more can you ask than that?"

Despite the showers and misters celebrating about everything from BYU's schedule to its margin of victory in the Holiday Bowl, the Cougars concluded the season on top of almost every poll. The Associated Press, United Press International, CBS, NBC, CNN, USA Today, ESPN, and Sports Illustrated all named BYU the 1984 national champion.

The Cougar gridder were also chosen as the nation's top team by the National Football Foundation and the Football Writers Association of America, who will present BYU with the Grantland Rice Award and the Mackay-Bowen Bowl.

"I think we deserve the making," said BYU coach LaVell Edwards. "I don't think we have to justify anything."

The Cougar club of Oklahoma coach Barry Swartz, did happen to help bring the title to Provo. It was the 14th ranking in the AP pollings that put a big win by the then-No. 2 Sumers in that poll. But Oklahoma's best showing is a 28-17 loss to Washington during the Cougars' final win over Oklahoma.

Swartz did receive one unexpected honor. Last week Salt Lake County mayors and commissioners passed a resolution recognizing that the sewage is in Miraflores he remained the "Barry Swartz bowl."

BYU's tie to the Holiday Bowl not only ended the Orange Bowl's parade, but the Cougars became the first team to win the national championship without playing in a New Year's Day bowl since 1968 — when the polls began picking the top team for the first time.

The Cougars are also the first Western Athletic Conference team to claim the title.

"It had to believe we're national champs," said BYU linebacker Lane White, who was named Defensive Player of the Game in the Holiday Bowl, 21-7 final.

There were few signs that the Cougars would end their undefeated run to the title on the one leg. With the loss of All-American Steve Young and Justin Hudson and two other starters, including the entire offensive backfield, BYU appeared to be in for a rebuilding year.

But when you look back, we won't even mention in the pressroom," said Edwards.

Not only were the Cougars overlooked by the polls, but sports illustrated even went as far as to suggest a "rebuilding year" for the Cougars. But BYU was its sixth consecutive WAC title, going 13-0 in the league and knocking off non-conference foes Pittsburgh, Baylor, Tulsa and Utah State.

And while the Cougars were winning work after work, Nebraska was losing to Syracuse and Oklahoma. Oklahoma was losing to Kansas and Tying Texas; Texas was losing to Baylor, Houston and Texas A&M; and Kansas was losing to Baylor and Washington was losing to USC.

Washington made a clutch drive with its wide receiver Oklahoma, and finished second in most polls. But the Cougars beat their chances at the title when they passed up a chance to play BYU in the Holiday Bowl.

Edwards, said he felt the Cougars should stay in the polls no matter what happened on New Year's Day.

"I'm not, I'm going into the game and you win, you lose, I'll be said. "We've beaten everyone we've played — met every challenge."

And no one else in the nation can say that.

Bangerter calls for era of prosperity

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Norman H. Bangerter, sworn in Monday as the state's first Republican governor in 30 years, said he wants to draw from the pioneer heritage for the "common sense and persistence" necessary to bring a new era of growth and prosperity.

"I am confident that Utahns today have the same courage, the same character, the same common sense and persistence that carried past generations as well," Bangerter said in his 30-minute inaugural address.

Bangerter, 52, was sworn in as Utah's 13th chief executive in elaborate ceremonies at the Capitol by Chief Justice Gordon Hall of the Utah Supreme Court.

A broadcaster by trade and former Speaker of the Utah House, the conservative Republican stressed the importance of limited government and the need for a self-reliant citizenry. He also reiterated campaign pledges to strengthen the state's overburdened education system, to improve the economy with new growth and improve government efficiency.

"The recognition that in this government, by the people, progress will depend more upon the effort of individual Utahns than upon any government program. The challenge of our leadership is to encourage and inspire the best efforts of our people," Bangerter said.

"Utahns share President Reagan's perspective that government should do only those things the people cannot do for themselves," he said.

But the tone of Bangerter's speech was conciliatory, offering praise for outgoing two-term Democratic Gov. Scott Matheson, and encouragement to teachers, who have questioned Bangerter's commitment to education.

Matheson, who chose to retire to private law practice rather than seek a third term, introduced his successor prior to the inaugural address.

Bangerter was often by debuting former congressman Dan Marshall in the primary and then breaking past Democrat Wayne Owens in the general election.

Governor and Mrs. Matheson have shown that over eight years what it means to be a United States citizen. They have worked for us through the state and nation," Bangerter said. "Governor and Mrs. Matheson have been able to show us, and their dedication has won our love, admiration and gratitude."

Bangerter spent most of the morning at private breakfasts with the governor's mansion with high-ranking state and federal officials. Among those attending were members of the state's congressional delegation, justices of the Supreme Court and ranking officials of the Utah National Guard.

The governor has been in charge of the inauguration, making preparations since October. The book inauguration and inaugural address was followed by a 90-minute reception in the Capitol's ornate Gold Room. A second reception, with 1,000 invited guests, followed.

Semester's first forum today

Christian Education is in Provo in a Semester Assembly today at 11 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

Addressing the topic is Dr. Wilhelm Rohm, professor of education and director of the Institute of Education at the University of Würzburg, Germany.

Rohm has given lectures or taught seminars at BYU about every year since 1971 as well as at universities in Europe, Africa, Canada, England and South America.

He is a leader in the relatively new philosophy of personalism, a view that starts with the human person as a value in itself. "Science, as well as everyday life, has to be in service of the person not vice versa," he said.

Rohm, a native of Czechoslovakia, has had studies philosophy, education, history, psychology, history and political science at the Universities of Würzburg and Bamberg in Germany and Padua in Italy. He holds a Ph.D. degree in education and philosophy and has written 10 books and more than 80 professional articles.

U.S.-Soviet arms talks begin

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union began preliminary nuclear arms talks Monday after a 13-month lull in negotiations. The talks are the first since the signing of the two-day summit conference.

One public show of civility between the two presidents, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, indicated that the talks might be going well. But there was no official confirmation.

The aim of the Shultz-Gromyko talks is to chart new formal negotiations to trim the present nuclear armaments of the superpowers and avert a catastrophe. The Soviets had abandoned nuclear missile talks in Geneva in late 1983.

Shultz on Monday morning spoke in a heavily guarded mansion in the Soviet Union where he met with Gromyko for 10 hours, an hour beyond schedule.

Following lunch, the two foreign ministers resumed discussions in the American mission and met for nearly three hours. Shultz gave a reception for the Soviet guests in the evening.

When he arrived at the American mission for the afternoon session, Gromyko waved and smiled to newsmen and then was escorted into the building by Arthur A. Hartono, U.S. ambassador in Moscow, and Paul M. Nize, chief arms control adviser to Shultz.

Lafferty trial underway

By LESLIE M. GANDOLA Senior Reporter

Testimony began Monday and will continue today in Lafferty's trial for the slaying deaths of Brenda and Ernie Lafferty. Wayne Watson, chief Utah County deputy attorney, said Monday's session in the 10th District Court with what he called a "mad man" after the crime was "a very dramatic and graphically described the events surrounding the slaying of the couple. However, his opening statement should not be considered evidence."

He added his statement was to give an "idea of what the state intends to prove, what they are going to say." "Sixty-seven pieces of evidence — well-in-excess of 80 witnesses" should be the evidence accepted by the jury, he said.

"Lafferty has been making an opening statement, saying he would wait until after the prosecution presented its evidence. That 30-year-old defendant is representing himself after refusing court-appointed attorneys Michael Evans and Gary Wright. Evans and Wright are serving as advisory counsel to Lafferty."

Lafferty has been charged along with his brother Ron, 46, with the July 24 killings of their parents, Brenda and Ernie Lafferty, 46, and their two children. Lafferty has been charged with two counts each of aggravated burglary and criminal embezzlement. Charged with the brothers were Ricky Martin Knapp, 34, and Charles "Chop" Carlson, 25.

Cornes and Knapp each pleaded guilty to three of the charges for which they are currently serving three consecutive five-year-to-life prison sentences. Both are charged with the other charges to be dropped in Lafferty's trial. See LAFFERTY page 2

Seek truth about God's nature

Elder McConkie says many have been deluded about God

By KRISTY PIERCE LUCERO
Campus Editor

Warned that many people have fallen prey to delusions about Deity, students were admonished by Elder Bruce R. McConkie at Sunday night's 15-State Fireside to seek for themselves the truth about who God is.

Elder McConkie of the LDS Council of Twelve asked students to seek answers to the "mysteries" of Godliness. Such mysteries, he said, are not beyond human comprehension, only carnal comprehension, and such answers are the foundation for all of the doctrines of salvation.

There is probably more ignorance and confusion as to the mystery of Godliness than there is about any other doctrine. As set forth in the three creeds of Christendom — the Nicene, the Apostles, and the Athanasian, which God himself said were an abomination in his sight — and as defined in the articles of religion of the various denominations, this doctrine is a mass of confusion and a mountain of falsity," Elder McConkie said.

The important, yet difficult to understand truths concerning Godliness can, however, be discerned, Elder McConkie said. "These high levels of intelligence (understanding of all doctrine and all mystery) are reached only through faith and obedience and righteousness. A person who relies on the intellect alone and who does not keep the commandments can never, worlds without end, comprehend the mystery of Godliness.

"We are duty bound to learn all that God has revealed about himself and his everlasting gospel. If we are to gain eternal life we must come to know the Great God and His Only Begotten whom He sent into the world."

Among the answers to questions concerning Godliness, Elder McConkie included:

— God is the Supreme Being who presides over and governs all things and therefore has no equal.

— He is a Holy Man and has a body of flesh and bones.

— He is the Eternal Father, the Father of Spirits.

— He is omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent.

— Elohim is the Father and Jehovah is the Son.

— Man was created and commanded to serve the Father.

— To gain salvation man must worship the Father and Him only.

— Christ is the God of our Fathers and is the Promised Messiah.

— He worked out His own salvation being subject to a mortal probation.

— He atoned for the sins of the world and was resurrected.

— He is the Mediator and Advocate for mankind.

— He worshiped the Father.

"The doctrine is what the doctrine is, and the concepts are what the concepts are. It is of no moment whatever that they spread confusion among uninspired worshippers at divers shrines, or among intellectuals whose interest in religion is purely academic and who rely on the power of the mind rather than the power of the Spirit for understanding," Elder McConkie said.

"Gospel truths are known and understood only by the power of the Spirit. Eternal life — which is to know God — is such an infinitely great reward that men must study, ponder, and pray, with all their hearts, to gain the needed knowledge."

The scriptures and the opportunity to learn is available to everyone. "We are all expected to learn the same truths, live the same laws, and open the same door to the same mysteries."

Mine deaths claimed preventable

By STEVEN J. HANSEN
Senior Reporter

The Wriberg mining disaster in Emery County which left 27 people dead, could have been prevented if certain safety measures had been operative, according to the president of United Mine Workers of America.

Richard Trumka, president of UMWA, told reporters at a recent press conference in Emery County a warning system on a belt line and an intercom system were inoperative and failed to alert the trapped miners about the fire that continues to burn in the coal mine.

A full-scale investigation will be conducted by UMWA to determine the cause of the fire. Trumka told families of the deceased miners if any wrongdoing is discovered, it will be corrected. "We will not see a mine disaster such as this go unremedied."

An ongoing investigation has not shown the cause of the blaze nor means of preventing similar mining accidents in the future. However, Trumka speculated friction between the coal and the belt carrying the coal could have produced the fire that caused the death of 28 men and one woman.

Despite the disrepair of certain safety mechanisms, Trumka said the foremost cause of the disaster was the two-entry system which did not allow for a separate fresh air intake in the event miners are trapped.

Because of a slide which blocked an escape route, the miners were trapped and overcome by carbon monoxide poisoning, he said. A third entry way providing a fresh-air intake and emergency provisions could have prevented the disaster. "If there had been a separate fresh-air intake, there would have been ample opportunity to make a safe retreat," he said.

Trumka dispelled reports of a safety chamber where it was hoped the miners would retreat. "No such safety chamber existed. I assume the notion was put in to comfort the families of the victims," he said.

Trumka hopes the disaster will lead to an increase of safety measures enacted by the Emery Mining Company. He said a third entry system should have been constructed to begin with. "It is proven a safe mine is more productive. This mine will not produce for a long time."

Lockdown is partially lifted, but prison murder unsolved

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — Utah State Prison officials partially lifted a lockdown of medium security inmates today, but last weekend's fatal stabbing of a 25-year-old inmate remained unsolved.

A prison official said 128 inmates of the prison's B block were allowed "tier recreation" activities, but 128 other inmates in the D block remained locked in their cells.

Deputy Warden Eldon Barnes said guards found two prison-made knives, but there was no evidence either was used to kill Robert Bankhead, who was serving a one-year prison term for theft.

"We're still investigating," Barnes said. "There are a lot of rumors flying around."

A guard saw Bankhead staggering in the prison's D block around noon Saturday and discovered that the inmate had been stabbed. Barnes said Bankhead died at the scene a short time later from at least one stab wound to the back.

Barnes said a coroner's report was due later today, and that should reveal the number of times Bankhead was stabbed.

He said tests were being conducted to determine whether there were any traces of blood on the knives found during the "shakedown" of inmates.

He said no blood could be seen with the naked eye, but tests were being conducted to learn whether either knife could have been used in Bankhead's stabbing.

Barnes said the knives could have been made in the prison's machine shop, but he said inmates sometimes fashion knives in their cells out of pens, faucet handles or other materials.

Two inmates were being held in a separate part of the prison, Barnes said. He said both were in the vicinity of Bankhead when he was stabbed, and the weapons were found on at least one of the men.

At this point, Barnes said, prison officials could only speculate on a motive for the stabbing.

"It could have been an argument that led to a fight that led to a stabbing and a death," Barnes said.

The D-block prisoners have been locked down since the stabbing was discovered Saturday, but Barnes said they appeared to be taking their confinement in stride.

Tacoma hospital files suit against Osmond foundation

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A Tacoma hospital is suing the singing Osmond family's fund-raising foundation for more than $250,000, claiming it renegotiated on a contract to share proceeds from the 1984 Children's Miracle Network Telethon.

Mary Bridge Children's Health Center filed a lawsuit in U.S. District court this week against The Osmond Foundation for the Children of the World. This foundation is a non-profit corporation founded by the Osmond family in Salt Lake City. Its purpose is to raise money for the benefit of children's hospitals.

The foundation produced telethons in 1983 and 1984 in 90 television markets for the benefit of 65 children's hospitals.

Mary Bridge was invited to participate last year and contracted to do so with foundation President Mick Shannon last October after giving the foundation a $3,000 "binder" check, the lawsuit says.

But later, Children's Orthopedic Hospital of Seattle decided to participate in the telethon on the condition that it was the only hospital in Washington to do so, according to Mary Bridge. Because of this, the Osmond foundation canceled the Mary Bridge contract and dropped it from the telethon, the lawsuit says.

The Tacoma hospital maintains it suffered at least $250,000 damages in loss of funds, good will and reputation.

Mary Bridge asked for a civil jury to hear the trial of its complaint.

Y boasts new Rhodes scholar

Rewards include 2 years to study at Oxford University

By LAURA CHILDERS
Asst. City Editor

It has been a magical year for BYU. We have a national champion football team; we have Miss America; and, best of all, we have a Rhodes scholar.

Ron Rinaldi, a senior from Bernillo, New Mexico, majoring in English, was named in December as one of this year's 32 Rhodes scholars. In September he will travel to England and spend two years studying at Oxford University.

Not only will all of Rinaldi's university and living expenses be provided by the Rhodes committee, but he will also be given approximately $10,000 to allow him to travel through Europe when he is not in school. The Rhodes scholarship was established by Cecil Rhodes in 1903 to educate at Oxford University the students he thought would be the leaders of the world.

There are two review levels in the Rhodes competition. At the state level two applicants are chosen to compete at the regional level. The country is divided into eight regions and four students are chosen from each region.

At the state level the candidates met at a dinner the night before they were to be interviewed. The experience was humbling, he said. "There was a guy from Stanford; there was a guy from the Naval Academy, and there were a bunch of people from St. John's University, which is a very exclusive university."

"There were 12 of us there at the state and I put myself in the middle of the pack. They were just bright, articulate people. They had done everything. They had written stuff and published stuff. They had been involved in political campaigns and student government. They were just really a sharp group of people."

But Rinaldi obviously made a favorable impression on the Rhodes committee, as he vaulted past the state competition and found himself one of the favored few at the end of the regionals.

Qualities committee members sought in applicants included: scholastic ability, literary ability, originality, personal initiative, leadership and devotion to athletics, he said. But BYU's reputation may have contributed to Rinaldi's success as well.

"There were some advantages to being at BYU this year in my Rhodes competition. BYU was in the news this year. People recognize the university, and it was a topic of interesting conversation. Without a doubt it was a good year to be associated with BYU."

"Coming to BYU had its advantages for me but it had a lot of disadvantages. The student body is fairly apathetic toward learning, I think. Unfortunately, most of the people at BYU are interested in getting a degree so they can get a job and aren't really interested at all in the life of the mind."

"But it's been an advantage in that there are some professors at BYU who I thought were outstanding in preparing students to think."

Accident claims life of Y student during vacation

A BYU student, Jason Briggs, was killed in an automobile accident over the Christmas break. The 18-year-old was a freshman from Provo majoring in pre-medical studies.

Briggs died from injuries sustained in an accident in Spanish Fork Canyon on Dec. 28, 1984. His mother, Mary Woolston Briggs and younger brother, Shawn Briggs, were also killed. His father, Dr. Leland Briggs, is listed in critical condition in Utah Valley Regional Medical Center.

Briggs was a linebacker on the BYU football team and was in the honors program. He graduated from Provo High School in 1984 with honors. He was active in student government and sports in high school.

Briggs graduated from Seminary and was preparing to go on a mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

3 being considered for artificial heart implants

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Three people with bad hearts, but currently in stable condition, are being considered by doctors at Humana Heart Institute International as possible recipients of artificial hearts, a spokeswoman said Monday.

"It's a very, very initial contact . . . They (Humana representatives) are reviewing records and consulting with (the patients') doctors," said Linda Broadbush, a spokeswoman for Humana Inc.

Dr. Allan M. Lansing, the institute's director, said earlier all three people lived around Louisville. "Their condition is stable, but if one of them starts deteriorating, we are prepared to move quickly," he said.

If the three are still considered potential candidates after the current reviews are completed, Humana doctors would invite them to the hospital for testing and to search for possible alternative treatments, such as a human heart transplant, Broadbush said.

If no treatment could be found and they remain classified as potential candidates, an evaluation committee would have to give its unanimous approval for an implant before the procedure could be scheduled.

Accountancy school ranked 6th in survey

BYU's School of Accountancy was ranked sixth in the nation for the second year in a row by a Public Accounting Report survey.

In its December 1984 issue, the publication, a newsletter for the accounting profession, announced the results of an annual survey of department chairpersons around the nation. BYU ranked sixth, behind first-place University of Illinois, then University of Texas, University of Michigan, University of Southern California and Ohio State University.

Dr. G. Fred Streuling, director of BYU's program, said the Public Accounting Report survey has ranked BYU in the top 10 the past four years.

According to the article accompanying the rankings, most survey participants based their ratings on class size, quality of students and percentage of classes taught by graduate assistants or professors.

Although the survey is "strictly opinion," it is the best available information, said Dale Taylor, associate director of the School of Accountancy.

BYU's school is on of the leaders in established professional schools because it has the ability to select top students and admission is limited.

Semester's five theater productions to include 'Othello,' 'The King and I'

By LAUREN A. MACHEK
Universe Staff Writer

As a new semester begins, so will a new schedule of theater productions.

During the winter semester, the Department of Theater and Cinematic Arts will present three plays and two musicals. The first will be "Othello," scheduled to open Jan. 17 in the Pardoe Drama Theater.

One of Shakespeare's greatest tragedies, "Othello," will be presented Jan. 17-19, 22-26, 29-31 and Feb. 2 at 8 p.m. There will be a matinee Jan. 28 at 4:30 p.m.

"Othello" is the tale of the valiant Moor of Venice, who is caught in a web of malice by the villain Iago. Othello, convinced that his beloved Desdemona is unfaithful, is manipulated into committing murder. The play will be directed by Marian Bentley. Tickets are on sale now.

"Antigone" will be the next theater presentation. Written by Jean Anouilh and directed by Lael J. Woodbury, it is a modern re-creation of Sophocles' drama. Performance dates are Jan. 31 through Feb. 2, Feb. 5-9 and 12-16 at 8 p.m. A matinee will be Feb. 11 at 4:30 p.m.

All performances will take place in the Margrets Arena Theater. Tickets will go on sale Jan. 21.

The third performance of the season is set in the Orient. Some of the most popular melodies ever to come from Broadway, such as "Hello Young Lovers," "Getting to Know You" and "Whistle a Happy Tune," will be performed in "The King and I." Performance dates are Feb. 13-16 and 19-23 at 8 p.m., and Feb. 18 at 4:30 p.m. in the de Jong Center Hall.

"The King and I" is based on the book "Anna and the King of Siam."

"Spokenword," a musical to be performed on the Pardoe stage, takes place in a Belfast, Ireland cycle shop. This new play tells two stories of how love is tried amidst the challenge of modernization and violence in today's Ireland.

The final performance of winter semester will be a Mayhew Award-winning play, "Til the Fat Lady Sings." In this play, a young woman's struggle for acceptance is portrayed. Performances will be March 21-23, 26-30 and April 2-5 at 8 p.m. in the Margrets Arena Theater. There will be a matinee at 4:30 p.m. on April 1.

BYU dancers getting ready for California

By MARNI BELL
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU Ballroom Dance Company is warming up for their mid-semester tour to southern California.

The dancers will receive an "education they cannot learn any other way" while they are on tour, said Tom Murdock, public relations director of the ballroom dance division.

They will tour various cities including San Bernardino, El Cajon and Carlsbad. On the way, they will also perform at Dixie College in southern Utah and the College of Desert Palms in Palms Springs.

While on the trip, the dancers will have the opportunity to tour museums, plants and facilities while they meet new people and learn about the local areas.

Every fourth year, the company returns to the same area. Since the last tour to southern California was in 1981, virtually all of the dances and costumes will be new to the audience, Murdock said. Many of the students are also new and have not had the chance to visit these areas before.

Other dances are from Southern California, so they are excited to perform in their home areas for a change, Murdock said.

The program will consist of 24 numbers. Each of the 36 students will perform in eight or nine of them. The show only lasts an hour and a half, so the audience will "want more," Murdock said. "Footloose," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," a new "Miss Piggy" number and various new solos will be on the program.

The company uses a truck to transport all of its equipment. It has 500 costumes, plus shoes, hair pieces and other accessories. The designing and development of the costumes is done by Lee Wakefield, the artistic director of the company, with the help of his wife, Linda.

The dancers also take lighting equipment and a portable stage with them.

Rehearsals began in September, and full-scale practicing for the show has now begun.

The dancers will tour the Oregon/Washington area in 1986, Arizona/New Mexico area in 1987 and Northern California in 1988, Murdock said.

The students are fortunate because the trips are funded by sponsors, said Murdock.

Deaf dance to the beat with interpreter's help

CHICAGO (AP) — Many of the youngsters who have danced and swayed to the music of the rock band Foxfire have never heard a note the group has played.

But Foxfire's hearing-impaired audiences never miss a beat, thanks to the work of Clarendia Gaudio Johnson, who interprets the band's lyrics with sign language and mime.

The four-piece band has played at more than 500 schools around the country, often providing deaf students their first taste of live rock music.

"The reactions from the children are exciting," said Johnson, who describes herself as the band's voiceless vocalist. "Teachers have told me it's the first time they've seen their students dance."

Foxfire is part of Silent Sounds Inc., a non-profit Chicago-based corporation that believes music and art should be available to everyone.

Y's Young Ambassadors to honor Dee Winterton

By GINA R. MARCUCCI COX
Asst. Lifestyle Editor

Utah audiences will have one last opportunity to see the late Dee Winterton's choreography in two Young Ambassadors' concerts on campus.

The concerts will be today and Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall.

Both concerts are dedicated to Winterton, a nationally acclaimed dancer-teacher for the National Endowment of the Arts and the Young Ambassadors' co-director.

He died in an automobile accident in October 1984.

Tickets for the performances are available through the music box office, Ext. 7444.

The concerts include the entertainer's 1985 tour material, all of which is new.

"Dee had concluded all but four of the numbers, and they were in the planning stages at the time he died," said Randy Boothe, a Young Ambassador director.

The 90-minute program is called "From America with Love" and includes music that the audiences overseas will hear and see.

The Young Ambassadors will travel to Yugoslavia, Austria, Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, Turkey, Jordan, Egypt and Greece this summer.

"We tried to think of numbers that would appeal to an international audience," said Boothe.

With that in mind, they selected "songs the whole world sings," with many songs made famous by such entertainers as Barry Manilow, Barbra Streisand, Stevie Wonder and The Carpenters.

They selected numbers from the movies "Fame" and "Footloose" which, according to Billboard Magazine, have reached even Middle East audiences.

Broadway shows to be highlighted include "Ain't Misbehavin'" and "Honeysuckle Rose."

In addition, the group commissioned Utah musician-composer Kurt Bestor to write "a Copland-like hoedown suite with everything from Charleston and tap dancing to the hoedown, American ballroom and jazz."

A three-man staff directs the performing troupe. Boothe is musical director. Ron Simpson directs orchestration and instrumentation for the group and Mark Huffman handles the choreography.

The Young Ambassadors sing romantic love songs from the turn of the century, reminiscent of a time "After the Ball," as part of their upcoming concerts today and Wednesday in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

Faculty shows its stuff during annual art show

A potpourri of artistic styles will be on view during the month of January when faculty members of the Art Department display their recent works for the annual Faculty Art Show.

Exhibits will be shown in Gallery 303 and the B.P. Larsen Gallery, HFAC. The exhibits will be on display throughout the month of January.

Among the full-time faculty exhibiting will be Wulf Barsch, symbolic religious painter and printmaker; Jim Christensen, fantasy artist; Brent Gehring, sculptor; Hagen Haltern, graphic artist; Franz M. Johansen, sculptor and artist. Sherron Hill, chairman of the department, will show abstract acrylics.

Other contributing artists include new faculty printmaker Wayne Kimball, oil painter Frank Magleby, ceramist Von Allen, and sculptor Clyff Allen. Part-time faculty members will also be displaying their works.

McCartney calls marriage 'volatile'

LONDON (AP) — Paul McCartney said he and his wife, Linda, nearly called off their wedding because they had a row the day before and that the spat continued 15 years later. But, he expects the marriage to "go on forever."

"People have this image of us — oh, isn't it wonderful... the perfect marriage. But our marriage isn't an idyll," the former Beatle said in an interview with the British magazine Woman.

"We had a row the day before we got married — and nearly called off the wedding. I'd characterize our relationship as rather volatile."

McCartney, 42, did not say what the row was about, but added: "We're not bored. We're still interested in each other. It's lusty. We do have wonderful children and a lovely marriage."

Low cost food can be grown in wading pool

MELBOURNE, Fla. (AP) — A backyard "fish farm" can supply low cost, high nutrition food for as little as 50 cents a pound, says a university teacher who teaches a course in raising fish.

The only requirements are a supply of baby fish, which can be purchased or taken from a lake or river, and a wading pool 12 feet in diameter and 3 feet deep. A pool that size holds enough water to raise 100 pounds of fish.

After five or six months of feeding the fish, the crop can be harvested at an average weight of one-half to three-quarters of a pound per fish.

Cougars win bowl for national title

By TROY STEINER
Sports Editor

SAN DIEGO — Holiday Bowl 7 was a fitting end to BYU's 1984 fantasy football season. The BYU Cougars, behind the courageous effort of junior quarterback Robbie Bosco, overcame injuries, turnovers and the Michigan Wolverines for a 24-17 victory Dec. 21 in San Diego.

The win completed a spectacular season for the Cougars and typified their play throughout this year — inspiring. The victory was the final milestone in a year that saw the Cougars rise from obscurity to the top of the collegiate football world.

Even though the Cougars were selected as this season's national champion, their title hopes began to fade early in the post-season bowl game when Bosco was carried from the field during the Cougars' second possession of the game.

On the critical play that put the BYU signal caller out he did what he had done all year long, drop back to pass. But this time a Michigan defender hit him late and knocked him out of the game for approximately the next eight minutes.

Bosco returned with 11:57 left in the first half and led the Cougars to a 10-7 lead at intermission. He was inspiring as he limped on and off the field because of ankle and knee injuries.

"I've never seen a more courageous quarterback," BYU coach LaVell Edwards said. "Just when I think I've seen it all as far as top quarterback performances at BYU, something else happens. I can't think of a better effort than Bosco's tonight."

Not only was the BYU quarterback inspiring, but so was the entire team. The Cougar offense piled up the yards while the defense stymied the Wolverine offensive attack to the tune of 202 total yards.

The Cougar offense gained 483 yards behind Bosco, who completed 30 of 42 passes, including two touchdowns and three interceptions. Reserve quarterback Blaine Fowler, who showed great poise under pressure while relieving Bosco, threw for 28 yards on five for seven passing.

Although Fowler wasn't responsible for any points he did lead the Cougars to three first downs before being stopped. "I was just trying to stay in the best I could," Fowler said. "I thought, 'This is the national championship.'"

Although Bosco's courageous effort deserves most of the credit, the offensive line did a fantastic job protecting him.

"If a guy on a bad leg can quarterback the winning team in the Holiday Bowl, it just goes to show how good his offensive line and receivers are," Bosco said. "Sometimes I wondered whether or not I was letting the team down, but things began to click for us in the fourth period."

The fact is Bosco's return gave the Cougars a lift that enabled them to extend the nation's longest win streak to 24 and complete a 13-0 season — only the second in history.

The offensive line became one cohesive unit upon his return and decided no one was going to get near him, center Trevor Matich said. "It was a tremendous lift," said Matich. "Because of the sacrifice he was making we were not going to let him down."

Bosco had the protection he needed to pass as he was sacked only twice the entire night. Although the offensive line was a big factor not everything went as smooth as possible.

The nation's most prolific passing attack showed the Michigan defense a new wrinkle when Bosco returned — the shotgun formation. "It threw us off," said offensive guard Craig Garrick. "We couldn't hear the audible."

This became evident on the first play out of the formation when Matich snapped the ball to an unaware Bosco. Luckily the ball hit Bosco, who was still looking at his receivers, in the stomach.

The problems didn't last long though as the offensive line adjusted and began rolling through the Michigan defense.

From start to finish BYU dominated the Wolverines. There were six reasons why the game wasn't a blowout — BYU turnovers. If the Cougars had played virtually error-free football they would've won by at least 14 additional points.

Michigan was given every chance imaginable from interceptions to a blocked field goal attempt, but was unable to do more than bend the tough Cougar defense.

Linebackers Leon White and Kurt Gouveia were the star defensive players of the game, but the entire unit should be credited for the fine performance.

The Cougars began the scoring when running-back Kelly Smith went up the middle for a five-yard touchdown. Lee Johnson added the extra point, and it was BYU with a 7-0 lead.

A fumble killed a BYU scoring chance after the Michigan punter was sacked on his own five-yard line and the Wolverines recovered in the endzone.

The Wolverines then drove 80 yards to tie the game. The Cougars had stopped Michigan twice on the drive, but penalties gave the Wolverines new life.

The touchdown was at least a 10-point turnaround because the Cougars probably would have scored at least a field goal from inside the 20-yard line and gone up 10-0.

BYU then took the ball on their next possession and drove to the Michigan 14-yard line where Johnson kicked a field goal for a 10-7 halftime.

The Cougars' turnover problems continued after intermission with Bosco throwing another interception. The BYU defense held and the three-point lead remained.

Another BYU drive stalled after a fumble on the Michigan 25. The Wolverines took the lead for the first time on a 10-yard touchdown pass late in the third quarter.

Again BYU tried to give the game to Michigan when the Cougars fumbled and the Wolverines recovered on the BYU 11-yard line. The defense came to the rescue again and held Michigan to just three points.

Bosco and company then drove 80 yards to knot the score 17-17 with the touchdown coming on a seven-yard pass to wide receiver Glen Kozlowski.

Then Michigan was stopped on four downs, but another Cougar interception gave the Wolverines the ball with good field position at the BYU 45-yard line. From there they went to the 30, but a penalty and sack forced them to punt.

Time ran out after Marv Allen put Michigan's chances to rest with an interception and the Cougars finished with a 24-17 Holiday Bowl win.

The victory was the 13th in a season that saw BYU rise from obscurity to within the Top 20. From there the Cougars consistently won while the nation's other teams lost. Steadily, the Cougars moved up the polls until they finally grabbed the top spot and held it for good.

Huskies coach blasts Gators

MIAMI (AP) — Washington coach Don James, after hearing that his Huskies had finished just ahead of No. 3 Florida in the Associated Press college football poll, blasted the Gators and said they shouldn't be allowed in the rankings because of an NCAA investigation.

"That's the only thing I can quarrel with — the writers who voted for Florida," James said after learning that Washington had finished second behind national champion BYU. "It's not fair to teams that got where they are under the rules we're supposed to live with."

Florida has been slapped with a two-year and possibly a three-year probation with sanctions — no bowl games, no television appearances — by the NCAA for 59 violations. However, the university is appealing part of the punishment, which limits it to 85 football scholarships in 1985 and 75 in 1986. The regular NCAA limit is 95 at any one time.

"Give me a suitcase full of money and I'll go out and develop a pretty good football team," James said, referring to Florida. Charley Pell, who was Florida's head coach when most of the violations occurred and was dismissed on Sept. 16, was not available for comment. But Galen Hall, who was elevated from offensive coordinator to succeed Pell said:

"Everyone has his own opinion, but I don't think the University of Florida got here that way. I hope other schools will be investigated as thoroughly as the University of Florida was."

As far as James' remark about the "suitcase full of money," Hall said, "I don't think that happened here. I don't even know the guy. Maybe he's still mad from when he was at Colorado (as an assistant from 1968-1970) and we beat him."

Hall joined the Florida staff last February after 18 years at the University of Oklahoma. The Gators won all eight games after he took over as head coach and finished 9-1-1, including their first South-eastern Conference championship.

However, the SEC will rule later this year on whether the Gators will be allowed to keep their conference championship or lose it because of the NCAA probation.

"The way we ended up playing the last games of the season and from what I saw on TV (in the bowls), we were the best team," said Hall.

Clippers thump Jazz, sail to 116-106 victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marques Johnson scored 11 of his 20 points in the third quarter and Derek Smith added 19 points Monday night to lead the Los Angeles Clippers to an easy 116-106 victory over the Utah Jazz.

The win was the second in a row for the Clippers, who had lost seven straight games before beating Denver 127-115 last Saturday night. The loss snapped a two-game Utah winning streak.

Mark Eaton, who was on the court for only 13 minutes due to early foul trouble, finished the game with only three points, four rebounds and two blocked shots. "As for me fouling out, I thought the refs called a very tight game," Eaton said. "The quickest I have fouled out in my career."

The Clippers, 16-21, never trailed, leading 33-19 after one quarter and 58-45 at halftime. They carried an 88-74 advantage into the final period.

Women golfers capture third in 14-team field during Desert Classic

The BYU women's golf team rose from a field of 14 schools to capture third place in the Trojanan Desert Classic Saturday at the Palm Springs Country Club.

The Cougars finished the 54-hole tourney, sponsored by Southern California and UCLA, with 913 strokes, only eight strokes behind winner Arizona State and four strokes off second-place finisher San Jose State.

"We probably should have finished second," said BYU Coach Gary Howard following the match. "We had one penalty that really hurt us and a couple of bad shots."

"Yet it was a good tournament for us because we can see we are close to winning first place," Howard added. "I was especially pleased with the play of Martha (Vegas). She started off 3-over-par on the first two holes and ended up with a 76 — two over par."

The BYU team had vaulted past San Jose State during Friday's round of play, standing four strokes behind leader ASU at the day's end. Senior Lynda Bridge helped the Cougar cause by scoring a hole-in-one on the 12th hole and finishing the day with a 76-stroke round.

"The kids played very well today, especially on the back side after some bad breaks on the front," Howard said on Friday. "Besides Lynda's (Bridge) hole-in-one, Karen (Zielenski) played very, very well with three birdies in a row at 12, 13 and 14."

Bridge finished the tournament with a 229 after a 75-stroke final round to tie for 10th place. Zielenski and Sue Billek finished in the tie for 14th with final scores of 230. Vargas completed the tournament with a total of 230 while Terry Norman finished with a 235.

ASU finished the tournament with 905 while San Jose State's score was 909. Immediately behind the Cougars in scoring was Stanford with 917 strokes. Other teams finishing behind BYU were USC with 933, North Carolina at 937, UCLA 942, Washington 952, New Mexico State at 971, Arizona 974, Hawaii 984, San Diego State 988 and Cal State-Long Beach with 1005.

Cougars now 1-1 in WAC

New Mexico's Johnny Brown puts up a shot past Cougar center Tom Gnetting in Saturday's action. Brown paced the Lobos with 26 points in their 76-70 win.

Led by the scoring of Johnny Brown and the free throw shooting of Kelvin Scarborough, the New Mexico Lobos staged a 76-70 comeback win over the BYU Cougars Saturday night in the Marriott Center.

After notching a six-point halftime lead, the Cougars suffered a six-minute scoring drought early in the second half while New Mexico took a 43-35 lead.

"We got off to really a poor start in the second half," said Cougar coach Laddell Andersen. "It's just one of those eight-minute stretches."

"We came out really dead in the second half," said Marty Perry. "They were patient with the ball and we made some dumb mistakes."

The Lobos extended their lead when New Mexico's George Scott scored on a fastbreak layup after BYU's Timo Saarelainen drew a charge that went uncalled. Saarelainen was charged with a technical foul after protesting to an official. Scarborough then dropped in the technical foul shot and two more free throws on the ensuing play to lift New Mexico to a 51-41 lead.

"It was a charge, and they should have called it," said Saarelainen.

Even New Mexico coach Gary Colson agreed. "Time had a legit gripe on the 'F' call," Colson said after the game.

"I think the missed charge is what really hurt," added Andersen. "Five points at that time in the game was big."

The Cougars chipped away at the 10-point Lobo lead until two free throws by Chris Nikchevich brought BYU within one at 63-52 with 5:38 left in the contest.

But the Lobos scored seven unanswered points for a 60-52 lead, and BYU never got closer than six.

"You've got to give them (New Mexico) credit," said Andersen. "They played really well in the second half."

Saarelainen led the Cougars in scoring with 20 points while Perry added a career-high 13, and freshman

Andy Toolson put in 10.

The Cougars opened WAC play Thursday night with a 62-60 win over last year's conference champion Texas-El Paso.

The Cougars took a 10-point half lead on the strength of nine points by center Tom Gnetting.

But the Miners came back to take a 48-47 lead on a basket by Jaden Smith. BYU took a two-point lead at 57-55 with 46 seconds remaining in the game. At that point, Miner coach Don Haskins decided to test the Cougars at the free-throw line.

Scott Sink sunk two charity tosses, and Alan Pollard, who was shooting only 40 percent from the line, was sent to the line twice, sealing the victory with four consecutive points.

As finals came to a close, the Cougars hosted Southwest Missouri State, Santa Clara and Hofstra in the annual Cougar Classic on Dec. 14-15.

Santa Clara, the eventual consolation winner, was eliminated in the opening round by Hofstra while BYU ousted Southwest Missouri in a 66-46 blowout. The Cougars then claimed the championship with an 86-76 victory over Hofstra.

In addition to claiming the Cougar Classic crown, BYU placed two players — Timo Saarelainen and Chris Nikchevich — on the all-tournament team.

Following the Cougars' tournament they faced back-to-back PAC-10 opponents in the Marriott Center. Concluding a four-game win streak, the Cougars beat UCLA 89-81 and then highly-ranked Washington 84-75.

Saarelainen led the Cougars in scoring against both PAC-10 teams with 22 and 23 points respectively. The UCLA win marked Andersen's 200th career coaching victory.

After a break for Christmas, the team traveled east to play in Atlanta's Cotton States Classic. The Cougars fell to then unbeaten Villanova in the opening game of the tournament 91-61, but captured the consolation crown with a 78-58 win over Yale.

The Cougars' record now stands at 7-5 overall and 1-1 in the WAC.

UTEP outscores Utes, 78-67 as WAC basketball begins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Juden Smith scored 20 points and Luster Goodwin added 19 to spark Texas-El Paso to its first Western Athletic Conference basketball victory of the season, a 78-67 decision over Utah in Salt Lake City Saturday night.

The Miners are now 1-1 in the conference after losing to Brigham Young in Provo on Thursday and 8-5 for the year. Having won their first WAC game against New Mexico Thursday, the Utes are now 1-1 and 6-8 overall.

Utah's Kelvin Upshaw led all scorers with 31 points, but the Utes couldn't muster much offense beyond the 6-foot-2-inch junior guard. No other Utah player scored in double figures.

Turnovers and poor shooting from the free-throw line hurt Utah down the stretch. The Utes had taken a 47-40 lead five minutes into the second half, but couldn't buy a basket for five minutes. Meanwhile, the Miners reeled off 10 straight points to take a lead they never relinquished.

The closest Utah could get in the final moments was 70-65, with just under two minutes left to play. Upshaw scored 16 of his total in the first half as Utah grabbed a 33-31 advantage, but Smith and Goodwin combined for 26 points in the second half to bring the Miners back and put the game away.

Hawaii vs. Wyoming
In Laramie, Wyo., sophomore Quinn Wirth hit two free throws, his first points of the season, and senior Jamal Hosey made the last two of his game-high 19 points to lift Wyoming over Hawaii 68-63.

Wyoming improved to 8-5 overall and 1-1 in the WAC. Hawaii fell to 4-8 and 0-2 in WAC play.

The Cowboys lost their conference opener to San Diego State on Thursday.

The game was close throughout, and the score was tied nine times, although Wyoming claimed a halftime advantage of 32-28 and pulled ahead by nine points, 62-53, with 4:19 to play.

Then Hawaii outscored the Cowboys 10-2. Six of those points were field goals by Sam Johnson, who pulled the Rainbow Warriors to within one point, 64-63, with 43 seconds left.

Johnson fouled Wirth, who had played only 24 minutes before Saturday and never attempted a free throw. He sank both ends of a one-and-one to put Wyoming ahead 66-63 with 13 seconds left.

Wyoming stole the ball on Hawaii's next drive, and then Hosey was fouled and made the two final free throws for the winning margin.

Rodney Gownes added 17 points to Hosey's 19 for Wyoming.

Andre Morgan paced Hawaii with 13 points, and Garland Hughes had 11.

Air Force vs. Colorado State

In Fort Collins, Colo., forward Rich Strong scored 17 points and pulled down six rebounds and guard John Dudley added 15 points to lead Colorado State to a 67-58 WAC victory over Air Force Friday night.

The triumph boosted the Rams to 2-0 in league play and 9-3 overall. Air Force is 0-1 and 4-6.

CSU took a 35-26 halftime edge, with Dudley scoring 13 of his points in the first half and Strong adding 12.

With 14 minutes left in the second half, Air Force scored seven unanswered points to draw within 43-41, but CSU held off the Falcons by outscoring the visitors 19-10 over the next seven minutes. Air Force managed to draw within six points at 63-57 as CSU missed the front end of five straight one-and-one free-throw opportunities, but the Falcons could get no closer.

The 15 points matched Dudley's career high. Guard Todd Benn contributed 10 points for the Rams.

Maurice McDonald led AFA with 12 points, while Jon Jordan had 11 and reserve Bob Marr 10.

San Diego State joins CSU as the early leader in the WAC with a 2-0 conference record and an 8-2 record overall.

Cougars 'shoo-in' for Classic; CSU, Byars attractive foes

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — National champion BYU is the odds-on favorite to be named to play in the 1985 Kickoff Classic, according to a member of the selection committee.

"If I was a betting man, BYU, if it wanted to go, is almost a shoo-in," said Col. John Clune, the Air Force Academy athletic director. "BYU is such an explosive team. They'd be a great choice."

The Kickoff Classic pairs two of the nation's top college football teams in the season's opening game in East Rutherford, N.J. Auburn and the University of Miami (Fla.) met in this past season's contest.

Clune said a decision on the two teams to play in the game will come in late February or early March.

He said Ohio State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Boston College, and Maryland are among the leading contenders to meet BYU, which was 13-0 this season and won the mythical national championship.

Ohio State is attractive because running back Keith Byars, second in the 1984 Heisman Trophy voting, returns for his senior year.

USFL Generals focus on Flutie in college draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Football League, proud of its previous record of signing college draft choices, is zeroing in on Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie, officially property of the New Jersey Generals.

The USFL, which says it signed almost 40 percent of the players in the previous two drafts, now has the head start in getting down to business with the Boston College quarterback after Thursday's draft.

The signing of Flutie by the Generals, in a major marketing area, is considered essential for the survival of the league, which begins its third season Feb. 23 with 14 teams — four less than last year.

Flutie, who was in Honolulu for the Hula Bowl, has said he will see what the USFL has to offer.

"If the money and the situation were the same, I would sign with the NFL," Flutie admitted. "But there will be many factors involved."

"It's time to realize your college career is finally behind you. The time has come to talk about pro football... money and the whole works."

The rival National Football League will hold its draft April 30 with the Buffalo Bills, with the worst record, 2-14, having the No. 1 pick.

Flutie hired Boston attorney Bob Woolf as his agent following the draft. Don's father, Richard, said the family had decided a month ago to hire Woolf, who also handles Larry Bird, Jim Plunkett and Carl Yastrzemski, but announced it on Thursday.

Flutie was one of 13 first-team All-Americans chosen by USFL clubs and one of five B.C. players picked by New Jersey.

Despite Flutie's impressive record, including 233 of 389 passes this season for 3,454 yards and 27 touchdowns, some pro scouts have been skeptical about Flutie's future chances because of his size, 5-foot-9 1/2.

Flutie, the all-time NCAA total offense leader, is expected to receive a multimillion-dollar deal from the Generals, who already have the 1982 Heisman winner in running back Herschel Walker. The USFL also has the 1983 Heisman winner in running back Mike Rozier, current property of the Baltimore (formerly Philadelphia) Stars.

The Generals drafted two other quarterbacks, Ohio State's Mike Tomczak and Colgate's Steve Calabria, in the territorial phase of the draft. Each team was allotted six schools from which to make 25 picks a piece.

All told, the USFL drafted 572 players in both the open and territorial draft.

Y grapplers finish trip to Hawaii with 4-2 mark

The BYU wrestling team had a little Hawaiian vacation over the Christmas holidays, but also had to compete in several dual meets while enjoying the tropical sun.

The Cougars concluded the road trip, which ran Dec. 28-31, with a 4-2 record. The teams the Cougars defeated were Boise State, Utah State, a Hawaiian all-star team and an all-service team. The BYU grapplers lost to Illinois and Minnesota.

In its victories BYU won decisively beating Boise State 27-9, Utah State 23-17, the all-stars 51-6 and the all-service team 54-6. The Cougar losses, on the other hand, were close. The fighting Illini squeaked by 20-17 and the Golden Gophers of Minnesota won 24-18.

In all of the contests the Cougars forfeited one weight class because nobody in the 126-pound division competed in the dual matches.

The Cougar grapplers have returning lettermen in every class except the 118-pound class. Last year's only senior was Brad Andersen.

Besides being returning lettermen, three WAC champions make up part of the squad. Heavyweight Henry Williams, Ron Hansen at 190 and Fred Allan at 158 pounds all won the conference championship last year and will be competing in the Cougar blue for this season also.

The Cougars open their winter semester matches at home against Fresno State on Jan. 16 in the Smith Fieldhouse.

SDSU guard scores win as WAC player of week

DENVER (AP) — San Diego State guard Anthony Watson was named Western Athletic Conference player of the week on Monday for his scoring in last week's games against Wyoming and Air Force.

The 6-foot-3 junior scored 16 points against Wyoming — 14 of them in the second half — to lead the Aztecs to a 60-57 victory over the Cowboys.

Against Air Force, Watson scored a game-high 20 points and snared seven rebounds as the Aztecs whipped the Falcons 88-73.

Others nominated for the honor included Air Force forward Jim Guisvig, Brigham Young center Alan Pollard, Colorado State forward Rich Strong and Hawaii center Ray Arthur.

Utes beat Y in tourney

Cougars 2nd in Copper Classic Tournament

By JAY RUYBALID
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU women's basketball team dropped to 8-5 on the season after a narrow 75-77 loss to Utah in the championship game of the Copper Classic.

The Cougars held a 10 point lead with five minutes left in the game before Utah stormed back and overtook them.

"We just didn't play," said head coach Courtney Leishman. "We'd get down and take bad shots, then they'd get crimples. We weren't getting back on defense either. I think (with the 10 point lead and five minutes left) it just dawned on them we were playing Utah."

The Cougars still held a two point lead with 57 seconds remaining, but couldn't counter two quick baskets by the Utes' Anne Handy and Leshia Spaulding. The Cougars had a double pick play set up for Cindy Battistone and it worked, but she dropped the ball.

Both Handy and Lee were named to the all-tournament team along with three players from BYU. Battistone, Kathy Denton and Tresa Spaulding were all selected to the squad.

Spaulding finished with a game-leading 16 rebounds and 24 points against the Utes, while Denton and Battistone contributed 15 and 23 points, respectively. Denton also finished with a game-leading nine assists.

Handy and Lee led the way for the Utes with 23 and 21 points, respectively, and Anita Sittes added 17 points.

Opening round win

The Cougars had earlier defeated Weber State 97-76 to advance to the championship game behind Battistone's 22 points, 8 rebounds and 10 assists.

In the consolation game of the classic Utah State defeated Weber State 63-59.

Leishman didn't think the big win over Weber State influenced the way the Cougars played against Utah.

"I don't think the blowout yesterday hurt their concentration, but the one with Oregon did (BYU defeated Oregon 88-47 on Dec. 29). They went up to Utah a few days later and saw the Utes lose by five to a team we beat by over 20, and we just expected it to be an easy game. We just weren't mentally ready," he said. "You can chalk that up to me, I didn't have them ready to play a tough game."

Of the win over the Oregon Ducks Leishman said, "We shot well and our transition game went very well. We played some good team ball. We got the fast break going, and we were able to keep control of the ball when we needed to."

"Oregon had some pretty good size out there. They played a 2-3 zone which gave some trouble to our post people. They played a very physical game, and they forced to close under the basket where it was difficult to rebound."

In the game against the Ducks the Cougars were led by Battistone with 20 points and Denton's 14 assists. Denton also contributed 17 points and 6 rebounds to go along with Spaulding's 20 points and 5 rebounds. Denton had 4 steals, despite sitting out seven minutes of the game.

Outstanding performances

Leishman went on to single out the performances of Denton and Battistone. "Kathy had an excellent night. She has a lot of ability. She got the ball up and down the floor. She made the key shot on the break, and she played with a lot of confidence that really helped us out."

He also said Denton compares favorably with Utah's all-conference guard of a year ago, Valerie Cravens. She is not as physical as Cravens but is quick and shoots and passes well, he noted.

Super Bowl XIX could be a duel of quarterbacks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Super Bowl XIX could become known as the Duel of the Quarterbacks.

In a time when critics of the pro game are quick to cite a decline in television ratings and argue that NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle's quest for party instead has fostered mediocrity, the quarterbacks for the Miami Dolphins and San Francisco 49ers are creating fan interest and excitement with a combination of excellence on the field and personal glamour.

Miami's Dan Marino and San Francisco's Joe Montana both have unusual leadership ability and great passing arms. They will be the opposing quarterbacks in the Super Bowl on Jan. 20 at Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto, Calif.

There is no hype in sports equal to that in the two weeks between the conference championships and the playing of the game's showcase event. So, Marino and Montana will be squarely in the glare of the media spotlights for the next 14 days.

Marino, a precocious 23-year-old, threw for 421 yards and four touchdowns — both American Conference championship game records — as the Dolphins routed the Pittsburgh Steelers 45-28 Sunday.

The 6-foot-4 Marino, whose quick release on his passes is unrivaled among his contemporaries, shattered several National Football League passing records in 1984, including becoming the first player ever to pass for more than 5,000 yards and for 48 regular-season touchdowns, as the Dolphins went 14-2.

The extraordinary passer from the University of Pittsburgh completed 21 of 32 aeriels against the Steelers as the Dolphins tied the Dallas Cowboys' record of five Super Bowl appearances.

Jon Giesler, an offensive tackle for the Dolphins said, "I've said all along, if you give Dan Marino time, he'll lead you to the promised land."

Giesler and the rest of the offensive line have helped make Marino the least-sacked quarterback in the league (14).

Montana, five years older at 28, and with a five-year edge on experience, draws the same kind of accolades as Marino and is the unquestioned leader of the 49ers.

San Francisco earned its second trip to the Super Bowl, blanking the defense-oriented Chicago Bears 23-0 Sunday in the National Football Conference title game as Montana completed 18 of 34 passing attempts for 293 yards and one touchdown.

The former Notre Dame star this season has guided the 49ers to an unprecedented 17 victories in 18 games — 15 of them in the regular season.

He is rangy at 6-2. And, besides his noted passing ability, Montana is known for being quick on his feet and for having an uncommon ability to scramble out of trouble and throw on the run. His team was second in Miami in fewest sacks allowed, with 27, during the regular season.

"Montana makes more big plays out of nothing than anyone I've seen," said Buddy Ryan, the Bears' defensive coordinator.

San Francisco defensive back Dwight Hicks said, "Marino is very, very good for being quick. The quickest release I've ever seen. And I've got to admit I'm a little biased, but I think Joe Montana is a great quarterback, too."

BYU's Cindy Battistone drives past Utah's Mila Rogers during the championship game of the Copper Classic in the Marriott Center Friday. The Lady Utes came back from a ten-point deficit to take the Classic title from the home team.

Of Battistone's efforts he said, "Cindy played a great game. She's probably one of the most underrated basketball players in the country. She can shoot. She plays defense, and she's competitive."

Other holiday action

In other holiday action prior to the Copper Classic and the win over Oregon, the Cougars participated in the Mid-America Classic in Columbia, Mo., Dec. 14-15.

The women faced two top-twenty teams in the classic in the form of 18th-ranked Missouri and 16th-ranked Texas Tech, dropping both contests. Against the Tigers from Missouri BYU pushed the game into overtime before falling 102-104. The Cougars lost 76-82 to the Red Raiders of Texas Tech after leading by one point at halftime.

The Georgia Bulldogs won the classic by defeating host Missouri. No Cougars were selected to the all-tournament team.

Sophomore center Tresa Spaulding continues to lead the team in several categories. She is averaging 23 points, 9.4 rebounds and 6.9 blocks per game. Senior forward Battistone follows Spaulding in scoring with 20.3 points and 7.9 rebounds.

game. Senior guard Denton tops the roster in total steals and assists with 57 and 76, respectively. The women's basketball team now has a three-week layoff before facing the Wyoming Cowgirls at home Jan. 25.

Rugby team begins tryouts today

Tryouts for the BYU rugby team begin today at 4:15 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse, Coach John Seggar said.

This season should be a good one for the ruggers, according to Seggar. Thirty-three players from last season are returning along with some good new recruits, both foreign and American, to strengthen the BYU squad.

"Just about all our main guys from last year are back," Seggar said. "Things look really good."

Among those returning will be Mark Ormsby and Lance Watene who both contributed to the success of the Cougars last year. Ormsby set the BYU record for scoring a year ago.

Other returning players who will contribute to the BYU squad this season will be Vern Rhead, Ross Dapper, Kent Winwood and Perry Crawford.

The four played last year on the second team and also will help the Cougars this season, Seggar said.

The first game of the season for the Cougars is scheduled for Feb. 2 in St. George against the Las Vegas Rugby Club.

The first home game is set for March 2 at Haws Field. This will be a seven-a-side tournament featuring many different teams. Each tournament team will consist of seven players.

The Cougars will face some tough competition this year in their 19-game season. Some of the best teams they will face will be the University of Arizona, New Mexico State, Air Force, Washington State and the University of Colorado, who took second in the nation last year, Seggar said.

"They (Colorado) finished second in the nation last year, so they think they're good," Seggar said. Although winning their union, or division, will not be easy the Cougars are almost assured of a berth into the regional playoffs because more teams will be eligible for the playoffs, Seggar said.

Last year the Cougars ruggers finished third in the regional playoffs and ranked fifth in the nation with a chance to improve on that this year because of the large number of returning players.

Real estate computer service makes house hunting easier

By MICHAEL J. RYAN
Universe Staff Writer

Trying to find a house to buy may be a problem to some, but a new real estate breakthrough may be the solution to the problem.

Brad Pelo, a partner in Innovative Business Associates, Inc., said a new system developed by the company called Video Listing Service will allow house hunters to see a number of homes that appeal to them without leaving the real estate office.

"The way VLS (Video Listing Service) works is that a person looking for a home is seated at a computer terminal," said Pelo. "The person then responds to a series of questions listed on the computer specifying the type of home desired: questions like the size of home wanted, the location, the price range and similar things home buyers are interested in."

"After the buyer finishes responding, the computer asks him/her to rate the choices made in order of importance," Pelo said. "The computer will then search a data base in the buyer's desired area and list the top 16 homes that come closest to what the buyer asked for."

Pelo said the computer lists the percentage of items each home has according to the buyer's desired specifications. "Rarely will the buyer find a home with 100 percent of what he wants. The first home of the 16 listed by the computer may have a 95 percent match-up, and the choices may go all the way down to 50 percent match-up on the last home listed."

The computer does not stop at merely listing the homes, Pelo said. "After the computer lists the homes closest to what the buyer wants, it will automatically go to a video disc player, grab a picture of the first home on the list, and display it on the terminal."

"The computer can also let the buyer look down the street the home is on, see the backyard, and look into every room of the house."

The idea of VLS was thought of by Pelo and his three partners in Innovative Business Associates, Inc. while the four friends were students at Orem High School.

"We got together at the end of our junior year and decided that instead of summer jobs like picking flowers, we wanted to start a company," said Pelo. "It all started as a notion, a crazy dream as some would call it. Initially we didn't really have a plan in mind; we had some concepts based on video, but it wasn't until we got together over about a two week period that we put together the idea that we wanted to start a business that would be a one-stop marketing system to view and choose your home."

Pelo and his business partners are under 25-years-old and taking classes at BYU, but are receiving outside help, he said. "It has been amazing, as young as we are, that reputable people in the business world would come in and work so closely with us, but that's how it has been since we started with our dream."

Hospital offers classes, videos

By SHAWNNA VAN WAGENEN
Universe Staff Writer

Videos aren't just for entertainment, and classes don't always have to be boring.

A videotape on first aid and home safety may be borrowed for viewing by groups, clubs and religious organizations from Orem Community Hospital. Several educational classes are also offered to the public on a regular basis by the hospital.

Classes include: Weight Control, PMS, Prenatal, Prenatal Review and Babysitting.

The first aid videotape, lasting 25-45 minutes, takes a practical approach to the treatment of injuries, said Daron Cowley, public-relations director at OCH.

The video gives guidelines on what types of injuries patients should go to a doctor for. "We feel it is the best tape dealing with first aid available," said Cowley. "It takes a very practical, down-to-earth approach to first aid."

A $10 deposit is required to borrow the tape, all of which will be refunded when the tape is returned.

Approximately every 12 weeks new weight control classes begin at OCH. Classes stress behavior modification as a method to permanently lose weight, Cowley said.

The class meets once a week for 10 weeks and costs $50, half of which is refundable if goals are met. Preregistration is required.

One of only two PMS (premenstrual syndrome) centers in Utah is located at OCH. "Although the center is not really part of the hospital, they do use our facilities," said Cowley.

Free lectures on PMS are presented on the first and third Thursdays of each month in the west lobby of OCH, and anyone interested may attend.

A prenatal class is offered at OCH to all interested couples, regardless of where they plan on having their baby, said Margene Flygare, teacher of prenatal classes.

"This prenatal class prepares couples for childbirth by addressing topics such as anatomy, fetal development, nutrition and exercise. We also discuss stages of labor, breathing patterns, the coach's role, possible interventions or variations of labor and delivery and medications," said Flygare.

Coaching techniques for the father are taught, but according to Flygare, the father is not always the one chosen to be the coach during labor. "I don't have just fathers who are taught the coaching techniques. I have a lot of mothers and friends who come as coaches."

"The mother often does not feel that the father would be an adequate support system during the labor process, so they ask someone else to do it," said Flygare.

Approximately three to four new prenatal classes begin each month. Classes meet once a week for six weeks.

Those who have taken the prenatal class can take a prenatal review class. "It is designed as a review for persons who already have taken the prenatal class. Those who have had a baby before may be a little fuzzy on things they once learned, so this class helps them brush up on these skills," said Flygare.

A class designed to help young children learn about the proper and safe methods of babysitting is also offered by OCH.

The Flame-in-gos, a group made up of prison inmate firefighters, provide service to the public in many areas besides fighting fires. This year the group has committed itself to raise $50,000 to help The Special Olympics.

Prisoners help the needy

By LESLIE M. GANDOLA
Senior Reporter

The long-accepted definition of the flame-ingo is being challenged by a group of 35 who do not boast of long legs or colored feathers — the Flame-in-gos.

Most commonly recognized as the Utah State Prison firefighters, the Flame-in-gos have been quietly serving the Salt Lake County and other areas since 1978. But the results of their quiet service are appreciated and admired. "We wanted to give something back," said Capt. Galyn Blackburn, program director. "Most of these men have been takers all of their lives and we wanted to be givers."

"There is always a positive reaction to service to others," Blackburn said, speaking of the reasons he started the program. Out of the hundreds of positive incidents, he added, there has never been a negative incident.

Blackburn noted results of the programs started to show in the attitude of the inmates. If the behavior of the top social strata in the prison is low, all others will be lower. But if it is high, the others will come up to it. The Flame-in-gos have helped raise prison behavior, Blackburn said.

Gov. Scott Matheson lauds the program, calling it professional and enthusiastic, said Marian Siebenhaar, deputy press secretary to the governor. Matheson added the Flame-in-gos do a quality job and proved that this summer when they went to Montana to fight the fires there, she said.

The program is the only one like it in the United States but other prisons are looking at the success of the program and asking questions, said Blackburn.

Beginning as a 10-man team, the program kicked off its service projects by cleaning the yard of an elderly woman. Their first big project was working at a camp for handicapped children in Emigration Canyon near Salt Lake City.

"It was one thing to do a lot of labor but we needed money to help support our public service activities," said Blackburn. The second year the 20-man team worked through land management agencies and trained in lands and forestry work. They earned $25,000.

Besides paying wages to the firefighters, the money goes to the firefighters' public service fund where the men vote on how it is spent.

One year they bought a $3,000 electric wheelchair for a woman. Another year, when a prison officer was disabled, the inmates raised funds to pay off the officer's house.

"The Special Olympics — that's our baby," said Blackburn. Since 1980, the Flame-in-gos have donated $10,000 a year to the Special Olympics and thousands of volunteer hours.

This year, however, the men committed themselves to donate $50,000 in honor of the international Special Olympic games to be held in Utah in March.

"I wish you could see the reaction of these big macho guys to the handicapped children," Blackburn said.

"It's fun working with the kids," said Eloy Lopez, an inmate who has been in the program for nine months. "It makes me feel important and it makes me feel good," he said.

Each work squad has inmate bosses. "They are their own toughest taskmasters," said Blackburn. One problem the men have to overcome is that in the general prison one inmate never tells another what to do, he added.

The men are also involved in who gets into the program. Those interested fill out a printed application which is reviewed by a Resident Management Team, which is made up of program members. After reviewing and discussing the applications, the team and two officers spend a day interviewing applicants. "They are tougher than staff," said Blackburn.

The men are very protective of the "priority program," said Blackburn. "We are a jealously guarded entity up here." "There are no fences allowed here," said Rhoades, adding no one has tried to escape so far. The group is close and "I would hate to be the one to disappoint them," by jeopardizing that trust, he said.

"We are treated like men up here, not treated like inmates," said Lopez. "We get a little more respect," he said, adding the staff is a lot closer to the men than in the general prison. "They (the staff) have done a great deal for me," he said.

There are a few things about the program that could be changed or done differently to make the program better, said Rhoades.

Plans announced to build new MTC in Great Britain

Missionaries called to serve in Great Britain for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will soon attend a missionary training center located near London.

The LDS Church's First Presidency recently said in a news release that plans are being made for the new England Missionary Training Center to be located in Lingfield, Surrey, on the property where the London Temple has operated since 1958.

Talmage Jones of Leeds, Utah, will serve as president of the center, which will provide training and orientation for missionaries called to serve in Great Britain.

Such orientation is now provided at the church's training facility in Provo.

Officials estimate approximately 20 missionaries a month will be trained in the new center. Jones and his wife Vera Jean Noyes Jones, have presided over missions for the church twice previously — in western Canada and in Singapore.

Jones is a native of Thatcher, Ariz., and holds degrees from UCLA and the University of Southern California, and his wife is a native of Salt Lake City. Jones is a retired certified public accountant.

Garn's flight on shuttle will be assigned soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tentative time has been scheduled for Utah Sen. Jake Garn's first training sessions for his mission on a future space shuttle flight, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

NASA officials said Garn will be assigned to a flight of the space shuttle sometime between March and August of this year.

The Republican lawmaker is scheduled Jan. 10 to fly to the Manned Space Flight Center in Houston for an altitude chamber test.

As a veteran military pilot, Garn already has qualified in the altitude chamber, but the test must be updated before further shuttle training can take place, NASA said.

From Jan. 14-17, Garn will undergo medical examinations, including a stress test on a treadmill, a parabolic high-altitude weightlessness training aboard a KC-135 jet and several training simulator sessions on various shuttle systems.

NASA said Garn will return to Houston in February for additional training, and also visit the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Garn will be assigned to work as a utility crew member on the shuttle flight, including such duties as photography and housekeeping.

The senator also has volunteered to undergo medical experiments in the effects of weightlessness on the human body, NASA said.
